Tenuta di Valgiano is located at an altitude of between 230 and 270m among the magnificent hills that overlook the city of Lucca, a treasure of the Italian Renaissance. The proximity of the Mediterranean coast and the altitude of the Apennine Mountains provide the area with an ideal climate. Grapes are grown here using the most natural methods possible, including ample use of biodynamic agriculture, to bring out the true character of the terroir. Valgiano wines have a lively, sunny, joyful and intense character, reflecting the exceptional charm of the estate and its inspired, enthusiastic owners. These wines will delight novices and demanding wine-lovers alike, and can be an excellent introduction for those wishing to become familiar with the Sangiovese variety and the true spirit of Tuscany.
